Online Fraud Advisory

SEI will never send emails that require customers to send personal information to us via email, website link or pop-up windows. Any unsolicited request for SEI account information you receive through emails, Web sites, or pop-up windows should be considered fraudulent.

Online fraud occurs when someone poses as a legitimate company to obtain sensitive personal data and then illegally conducts transactions on your existing accounts. Often called "phishing" or "spoofing," the most pervasive methods of online fraud are emails, counterfeit Web sites and pop-up windows, or any combination of these.

Fraudulent emails often:

- Appear to be from a legitimate, trusted source. You should not rely on the name or address in the "From" field, as this can be easily altered.
- Ask you for personal information. These emails often claim that your information has been compromised or frozen, or ask you to confirm your identity.
- Link to counterfeit Web sites. These sites may appear legitimate, but actually collect personal information for illegal use. They may also include a link to the real website in an attempt to make the link seem legitimate.
- Contain fraudulent phone numbers. These telephone numbers are usually tied directly to the fraud perpetrators. Never call a number featured on an email you suspect is fraudulent, and be sure to double-check any numbers you do call. In addition, a legitimate number may be included in an attempt to authenticate the email.

To help protect yourself from these fraudulent emails and Web sites:

- Never provide sensitive account or personal information in response to an email.
- Delete suspicious emails without opening them. If you do open a suspicious email, do not open any attachments or click on any links it may contain.
- Bookmark any sites that house personal account information and use those bookmarks to navigate directly to those sites.
- Install and regularly update virus protection software.
- Keep your computer operating system and Web browser current.

Further, you acknowledge and agree that if SEI deems in its sole discretion that any RSS feed you have attempted to add or have added to the Website is objectionable or otherwise inappropriate, SEI may remove the RSS feed from the Website. Notwithstanding the foregoing, SEI assumes no responsibility to monitor RSS feeds added to the Website and SEI's election to not remove an RSS feed from the Website shall not be construed as SEI's acceptance of such RSS feed or the content accessible via such RSS feed. SEI may suspend or eliminate access to the RSS reader function of the Website at any time.
